In a memo to officers of all IAJGS affiliates, Hal Bookbinder, president of the IAJGS explained that there has been insufficient registration.

Registrees are being offered a full refund of

What, another petition?

by Don Fallick

Hardly a day passes without someone asking me to sign an on-line petition for some worthy cause. If I didn't just delete most, unopened, I could spend my whole life signing petitions.

When I became editor of Atsmi Uvsari, I swore I would NEVER use it as a soapbox. So why am I passing along an on-line petition for you to sign? This one really is different, and vitally important.

It asks the United Nations to treat suicide bombings as “war crimes,” and that those who inspire them be prosecuted by the International War Crimes Tribunal. I had no idea that suicide bombings of civilians were NOT “war crimes” under international law.

There has never been a war without some civilian casualties. But those who organize suicide attacks which target civilians should certainly be considered war criminals, if not monsters, and should be treated as such by all countries.

Book Review

THE BOOK OF ABRAHAM by Marek Halter

Original, French edition © 1983 by Editions Robert Laffont, S.A.

Translation © 1986 by Henry Holt & Co.

Originally published in France under the title, La Mémoire d'Abraham.

ISBN 0-03-071887-2

In Italian, a translator is a traduttore and a traitor is a traditore. This work is more

---

Even though titled a novel, it is much more than that. It is even more than the introduction of the flap which says in part: "...an amazing work of historical fiction, covering two thousand years of a hundred generations " – from 70 A.D. to the destruction of the Warsaw Ghetto, which the author survived.

In Italian, a translator is a traduttore and a traitor is a traditore. This work is more than a "Book". The word mémoire has several meanings in French. It can be your "memory", it can be an abstract or dissertation, it can be a memorial, it can be the philosophical or physical part of your mind where information is kept. In any case it indicates resisting the passage of time.

The mythical progenitor of the family is named Abraham, the scribe who fled the burning of Jerusalem when it was conquered by the Roman legions. To keep the family tradition alive he made a parchment that was to be transmitted from generation to generation, each generation adding to it, hence the name, THE MEMORY OF ABRAHAM. Marek's own grandfather was an Abraham who perished in the uprising of the Warsaw Ghetto, just before modern Jewish interest in genealogy blossomed.

Fictional up to the Fifteenth Century, the generations live through the Jewish persecutions of all the ages. From then on, it is the history of the author's family.

The French introduction mentions that there are no evil Jewish characters in the book, as works from others have supplied more than enough.

Each of the forty-eight chapters can be read separately, as each covers the lives of one, two or three generations.

In conclusion, let me just give a quote from Shimon Peres about the book: "A fascinating portrayal of our people... a story of suffering and hope, longing and wandering, struggle and achievement... A wonderful epic which deserves to be used as required text in our schools...An exceptional book." — Robert Neu ☆

Jews and the Spanish Inquisition, Part II – Was Columbus Jewish?

by Betty Ventura

Five hundred years after the arrival of Columbus in the New World, historians still labor to unravel the mysteries surrounding his life. Columbus himself contributed to the enigma. He seemed determined to hide certain facts about his life even from his own family. In the past decade, through newly published works, we are given a new perspective of this remarkable man.

After his first voyages, Columbus spent three years, from 1500 to 1503, preparing a small document which he called THE BOOK OF PROPHECIES. It was to convince the Spanish monarchs, Isabel and Ferdinand, of the need for further exploration in the New World, led by himself. The book is a collection of “prophecies,” references from the Old Testament and early Christian writers about those dwelling upon the isles of the seas, the Lord’s concern for them, and therefore the need for converting them to Christianity.

His book was translated and appeared in English under the bilingual title, THE LIBRO DE PROFECIAS OF CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS, by West and Kling, published by University of Florida Press in 1991. Included in the book are Columbus’s expressions about his own deep spiritual feelings:

Mine is a calling that inclines those who pursue it to desire to understand the world’s secrets . . . I prayed to the most merciful Lord concerning my desire, and he gave me the spirit and the intelligence for it. He gave me abundant skill in the mariner’s arts, an adequate understanding of the stars, and of geometry and arithmetic. He gave me the mental capacity and the manual skill to draft spherical maps. The Lord opened my mind to the fact that it would be possible to sail from here to the Indies . . . This was the fire that burned within me . . . Who can doubt that this fire was not just mine, but also of the Holy Spirit which encouraged me. (West & Kling, pp.105, 107)

A second work of recent years on Columbus is COLOM IEL MON CATALA (Columbus and the Catalan World), published in 1993 in Barcelona, Spain, by the Centre

d’Estudis Colombins. This is a collection of studies by various researchers and deals with the Catalan influences in Columbus’ life.

For instance, new information is given on the two men who financed Columbus’ first voyage, Luis Santangel and Gabriel Sanxis. They were Catalans, both of Jewish descent, and held positions of importance in King Ferdinand’s kingdom. Santangel was the king’s Comptroller and Sanxis, General Treasurer of Aragon, both key financial posts. Their importance to Ferdinand is shown in his protection of them from the Inquisition. And it was their money, not Isabel’s jewels, that paid for Columbus’s ships.

In Catalan, colom means dove. So we can say that Colom, like Noah’s dove of the Ark, crossed arguments that Columbus was Catalan. During his return from his first voyage he wrote letters to these two men telling of his discoveries. The Santangel letter is described in an inventory which Columbus' son kept of his father's papers, wherein he says, "Letter written [to Santangel] in 1493 in Catalan." And Columbus signed his name in official documents as "Colom," the Catalan version of his surname. Still more Catalan evidence is found in Columbus' coat-of-arms, in which appears the phrase: "For Castille and for Leon, a New World Found Colom."

The name Colom itself has great symbolism. In Catalan, colom means dove. So we can say that Colom, like Noah's dove of the Ark, crossed mighty waters in search of a new land. The Colom family of Majorca still uses the coat-of-arms of a "Noah dove," pictured flying over waves with a leaf in its mouth.

The Catalan connection includes the idea that Columbus was Jewish, which would explain many questions about his life: his rich educational background, typically Jewish, his knowledge of Old Testament prophecies and Greek classical writings, his relationship with marranos such as Santangel and Sanxis, the secrecy surrounding his early life.

Among the Catalan people, inhabitants of the northeast area of Spain and the islands of Mallorca [pronounced "Mayorca"—ed.] and Menorca, there is a strong Hebrew heritage. The surname Colom is common in all this area. Montjuich, mountain of the Jews, is a prominent landmark of Barcelona. During the Middle Ages, cartography, or map making, was considered an exclusively Catalan Jewish profession, and the Majorca school of cartography was famous.

In his BOOK OF PROPHECIES, Columbus expresses his belief that it was Divine will that decreed he fill this mission. This conviction, he says, is what sustained him through the seven long years of waiting at the court. He then explains, "I will speak of a particular prophecy, because it applies particularly to my experience, and it comforts me and fills me with joy every time I think of it." (West & Kling, p. 111) The passage quoted is Isaiah 60, verses 8 and 9:

"Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows? Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the Lord thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel." An analysis of this passage in the light of modern scholarship is revealing.

- "These that fly as a cloud" – Columbus's ships were "caravels," a new type of smaller and lighter construction used by the Spanish and Portuguese for ocean exploration during the 1500's and 1600's. Built with a broad bow, these ships sat higher in the water, and with their three sails were able to travel at great speed impelled by the wind. Indeed, it was the caravel

Christopher Columbus' "arms" show the royal houses of Castile and Leon, the isles of the sea, the five anchors of an Admiral, and his family's arms.

that made possible the long sea voyages that marked the age of discovery. (From Webster's Dictionary)

- “As doves to their windows” – Here Columbus's name, the dove Colom, speaks out to him from Isaiah. And here also is an allusion to the “Noah dove” returning to the “windows” of the Ark after having successfully crossed mighty waters in search of land
- “The isles shall wait for me” – Did not an entire hemisphere remain hidden from the world until this man made his discovery?
- “The ships of Tarshish first” – Biblical scholars fix the location of Tarshish (or Tartessus) as having been on the southwest coast of Spain. This would place it near Palos, Columbus's port of departure. “The ships of Tarshish first” – the Columbus ships, first to venture out across the broad western seas.
- “Thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them” – And as a final historical fact, in order to substantiate his story, Columbus brought back with him from the Americas eight Indians and native crafts made of gold and silver.

For Columbus, the prophet Isaiah's scripture had great personal meaning. With good reason he could state that the mere thought that it applied “particularly” to him, gave him immense “comfort” and “joy.” Present-day scholarship allows us to gain a new perception of Columbus and to appreciate his greatness even more. ☆

[Lest anyone object that Columbus was known to be an Italian from Genoa, Robert Neu points out that there is also a Genoa in Majorca, a type of confusion especially familiar to all Jewish genealogists. – Ed.]

Dear Editors:

For those of you who send out your newsletters via .PDF I'd like to suggest that you do it by giving to us the site to go to.

This worked out so well for me and our members. The email came in, then was just forwarded to our membership list taking less than a few minutes.

When the newsletter itself is downloaded for those of us (and I am one) who use dial-up it can take up to 30 minutes for the very big newsletters and about 20 for the smaller ones.

Then the same amount of time to upload it to my members. This follows through to the membership in that they don't need to tie up their phone lines and in some cases are "refused" the attachment.

Shalom,

Joan Parker

Digest of September UJGS Meeting Minutes

by Rochelle Kaplan

Robert announced that November's agenda should be to review/approve by-laws and constitution of UJGS. Passed.

Don Fallick updated the group re: newsletter. E-mail production is best since it saves money; however, one member needs a hard copy. Can get back issues. We email 70 copies of each issue. Articles are continually needed. We need to have a thorny problem dogging some-one for next issue. We now have capacity to include photos and color. Next issue will complete SLC Jewish Cemetery project and will contain highlights of Rochelle's trip to Latvia and Lithuania to explore one part of her family history.

Don Fallick would like to present on "Books of Remembrance". This was to be added to the November agenda but will be pushed back to a later meeting.

Robert circulated Avotaynu issues, photocopied material of Eileen Hallett Stone study guide handout, and materials/binder from IAJGS Conference in DC in July.

Robert Neu and Rochelle Kaplan reported their news from the conference.

IAJGS changed one by-law: there are now no term limits for any officers except the President, who may be elected for two terms. Officers serve 2-year terms. Dan Schlyter, one of our members, is an IAJGS board member.

The JCLLA and IAJGS announced a lending film library, through JCLLA. To scan the catalogue, check out this website: www.jclla.org. The only cost to the borrower is return shipping to LA.

Don suggested that we could view a film during a meeting; or, a member could view a film; then write a review. We might even have a film review column. He recommended Partisans of Vilna, which was shown at IAJGS Film Series, and also the book upon which it was based: The Avengers: Partisans of Vilna.

JewishGen announced JOWBR, the JewishGen Online Worldwide Burial Registry database. We may wish to donate Salt Lake City information to this site.

Mary Ann Jacobs requested a copy of the 1878 Map showing Galicia, Austria, from the US Library of Congress. Some copies of this map will be available for the next meeting.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, Nov. 18 2003 at 7 PM at Kol Ami. The agenda will be to review and vote on by-laws and constitution. Rochelle will present on her trip to Latvia and Lithuania. ☆

Two Reports from the IAJGS Conference

Robert Neu's Report:

His impression was that much of the conference dealt with Holocaust issues. Monday evening the US Holocaust Museum was open to conference members. The variety of Jewish experiences was explored, with presentations about Ethiopian Jews, Crypto-Jews, Iranian Jews, and South American Jews, among others.

Jews of the Austro-Hungarian Empire often felt dual allegiances or even triplicate allegiances: for example, as Slovak, Austrian, and Jewish or Hungarian, Austrian and Jewish. For many of these Jews, World War II was a rude awakening.

The Ethiopian presenter said that his people can trace their ancestry back eighty generations, but it is an oral tradition, and the Jews are now elderly. An oral history project to record the memories is now underway.

The Red Cross has received Holocaust records from the USSR but remains niggardly regarding publication of the material. Book recommendation: The Counted Remnant, about Hungary.

An INS presenter said the INS has files on those who emigrated to the US after 1940. Marelynn added that these immigrants had to register every year with the INS. If you ask for records on an ancestor, ask for ALL records pertaining to that individual. An article by Marelynn in a back-issue of our newsletter has information on INS websites/locations.

Alexander Noy spoke about the records available for Ukraine: censuses were taken in 1865, 1890 and 1921. ☆

Rochelle Kaplan's Report:

Rochelle gave a summary and handouts of her trip to the IAJGS Convention:

Preservation

Workshops on preservation of photos, documents, home movies, and videos. AIC, the American Institute for Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works, based in Washington, DC, has a free guide to conservation services. To obtain a list of conservators in your area contact AIC at: info@aic-faic.org; fax: 202-452-9328 or phone 202-452-9545 ext. 1.

Family Histories.

Although Rochelle attended only one workshop: Oral History Interviews, she obtained handouts on:

- The Family Newsletter
- Write Your Family History NOW
- Encouraging Senior Citizens to Write Family History Stories and Anecdotes
- Creating Digital Multimedia Presentations of Your Family Stories
- Digital Imaging and Genealogy.

As part of the Oral History Interview workshop, the presenter handed out a flyer touting the Veterans History Project, which seeks volunteers and partners. To get further info, call: 1-888-371-5848, fax 1-202-252-2046 or check out the website:

www.loc.gov/folklife/vets/

Researching Women

Rochelle attended DeBartolo Carmack's workshop on researching women. She distributed handouts entitled:

- The Silent Woman: Bringing a Name to Life
- The Immigrant Experience: From Steerage to Ellis Island
- Coroner Medical Examiner Reports: A Vivid Word Picture
- The Shtetl Household

Hebrew

Rochelle attended a workshop on Reading Hebrew Tombstones. She distributed other, Hebrew-related handouts:

- A Proposal for a Method of Reading Languages Transliterated into Hebrew
- Understanding the “Jewish” in Jewish Genealogy: The Influence of Jewish Religion and Culture.

She also reminded members to check out the JewishGen website, which includes information on the Jewish calendar and reading tombstones. Their viewmate option enables you to scan documents and photos onto this website and ask for translations. She used this option to get a second translation of her “gggf”s” tombstone.

Breaking Through Brick Walls

Although Rochelle didn’t attend either workshop on this topic, she made copies of both handouts. She finds the Bookbinder handout the most useful.

Genetics Profile of Jewish Populations: the article makes interesting reading and briefly discusses how Jews got to Europe.

Russian Issues

Rochelle attended two workshops and distributed handouts: Russian Archival Research and Russian and Jewish Encyclopedias.

Aerial Reconnaissance Photographs.

Rochelle attended a workshop on NARA II. She distributed Kahn’s handout, Aerial Reconnaissance Photographs in the National Archives. Rochelle did not find the visit to Archives II, in College Park, MD, useful. She was unprepared; visitors are advised to contact Archives II at least a week ahead of time with expected date of visit and names and coordinates (latitude/longitude) of locations they are interested in. Archives II also has photographs of Europe and the US. She had three other handouts from similar workshops about Travel to and Finding Your Ancestral Shtetl.

Rochelle attended an unsatisfying, disorganized and rambling talk on Where Our Latvian Jewish Ancestors Came From. The handout is useful for its maps.

Not discussed or distributed at the meeting is the handout for Beginner’s Workshop on Jewish Genealogy, by Levin Arbeiter. Some of you may find it useful. It’s available from Rochelle by e-mail.

For more Information

Rochelle went to the welcome evening, additional workshops on Slutsk, various SIG meetings, the Holocaust Museum, Latvia/Lithuania, Belarus and Ukraine workshops, and photography exhibits. If you wish to get details, contact her at rokap@hotmail.com. Each member who attended has a copy of the binder and CD-Rom of the conference. For our group, that is Robert, Marelynn and Rochelle. Rochelle provided all attachments at the meeting, and as attachments to her e-mail distribution of the minutes, as well as summaries of the workshops she attended.

To obtain a list/summary of audiotapes available for purchase, of workshops at the IAJGS conference, and to buy tapes, go to site: www.audiotapes.com, follow the link to genealogy, then link to conferences. The IAJGS Conference is the top one listed; follow this link. There are 130 tapes available at $8.50 each, plus shipping, with discounts on orders of twelve tapes. ☆

A GUIDE TO MONTEFIORE CEMETERY

by Ralph Tannenbaum and Shane Wamsley

This completes our cemetery project, detailing the major Jewish sites in Salt Lake City. Like the other articles, it is an abridgement of the complete database prepared by Shane, from Ralph's research. A graphical representation of the entire cemetery would take at least five pages, even in the smallest type, and would likely be more confusing than useful. Look for the complete database on line soon, with all dates and other notes.

Montefiore is located just east of B'nai Israel East. See the map and directions in Volume One, Number Two. This index was updated from Ralph's and Shane's January, 2003 name list. Where there were discrepancies, I followed the 2003 list. Any errors caused by this, or by my transcription, are my fault alone, and should not be blamed on Ralph or Shane. – Don Fallick ☆
